Leasehold flat There is a flat in the block where I live and I have been trying to get a leasehold flat for months. Finally, this week I found a person who is ready to do the deal. But I have only Rs.1 lakh to pay him. I think I would have to borrow from relatives. But there is still no word from the bank. Are all brokers crooks? I know I am no way near finding a place in my budget of Rs.3.5 lakh. It's not that the brokers are crooks and I can afford to lose the deal. But what about me?

How will I find a place? What happens if the lease expires and I don't find a place? I am very upset. Disclaimer: The views expressed in the above article are the writer's personal views and not of Thomson Reuters Foundation. Madras High Court on Thursday directed the state government to release for auction eight bighas of land lying at Gosamajapuram near Kanchipuram in Tamil Nadu to be used for 'rural electricity for individual and public establishments'. A bench headed by Chief Justice Pradeep Nandrajog also issued notices to the Centre and the Electricity Board of Tamil Nadu on the petition filed by a Kanchipuram-based collector saying that the land should be auctioned as an open tender as the government had waived off the repayment of Rs.26.95 lakh claimed by the petitioner against the land. The bench passed the order on the representation of the Tamil Nadu government that no bids were received for the land during the last auction of electric poles held in the state on March 21-22. Attorney General Mukul Rohatgi contended that it was not open for the petitioner to claim the waiving off of the repayment as a consideration for the waiver. The collector had in 2006 levied a sum of Rs.26.95 lakh from the petitioner for violation of the Tamil Nadu Electricity (Supply and Distribution) Act, 1989 82157476af
